After a successful 15 year career in the nonprofit sector and higher education, I found my calling in supporting growing families by becoming a birth doula, which led to completing a 200 hour yoga teacher training with Breathe for Change yoga teacher training program for educators and a prenatal yoga teacher training with Lotus Blossom.

As a lifelong learner and caregiver, I'm dedicated to helping others realize their potential and actualize their dreams and goals. I offer nonjudgmental care and support by listening and providing services as requested by the client, as well as providing evidence-based information so clients can make an informed decision that is right for their needs and lifestyle.

As a daughter of immigrants and first generation college student, I'm committed to social justice and advocating for improved access and equity in health and educational opportunities that improve the socioeconomic status of historically underserved populations. I value diversity and believe in the power of the people to uplift each other and society as a whole.
